Dear Kevin,

Sandy and I want to express our gratitude to you for taking the time and effort to present to ELI's Judicial Leaders in Climate Science in Woods Hole last week. We received many comments from the judges about the quality of the presentations, and especially on your excellent session on climate attribution. Attribution is such an important part of proving the causal chain in a case—thank you for explaining it!

We know how busy you are and sincerely appreciate your willingness to give our program priority over the many other demands that are placed on you. The work you are doing is of vital importance to the future of humanity and the planet, and so we are extremely grateful that you would allow us to share it with this influential audience. I know I speak for all of the judges in saying thank you with deepest appreciation.

With best wishes,
