Good morning, Sandy.

Judge Montalbano and I have been working to assemble the panel for the judicial conference and we could use some guidance selecting our final speaker.

We have confirmed that Sen. Whitehouse will be speaking. Per his office, his remarks will focus on the intersection of dark money, climate change and the corporate capture of the US Supreme Court.

Julia Wyman, the Director of Marine Affairs Institute & RI Sea Grant Legal Program at Roger Williams School of Law has also agreed to speak. Her remarks will be directed toward climate change issues in Rhode Island and current and future legal issues.

It seems to me we are missing the "science and data" aspect of our program.

To that end, we are considering asking either Michael Oppenheimer (your recommendation) or Nathan Vinhaterio, the Science Director at the URI Coastal Institute. <https://ci.uri.edu/meet/nathan-vinhateiro-phd/>. Might you have any input into who might best suit our needs?

I appreciate any assistance you might provide.

Thanks,

Katie

Dear Katie,

This is wonderful news! I'm copying in Jared Mummert who is our manager now.

Might it make sense to schedule a time to talk in more detail about what these sessions might look like and how we might help identify speakers or otherwise provide content?

We do have our full curriculum and content on our resource website, but in terms of structuring sessions and picking speakers, it might make sense to talk.

Let us know and perhaps we can find a time to talk next week?

Best regards,

Sandy

Good afternoon, Sarah.

I'm reaching out because Judge Montalbano has been added to the fall 2024 judicial conference. There are three, 35-minute sessions to fill, addressing (1) science and data (2) specific local climate change issues and (3) climate trends. Do you have any guides or other resources we might use for planning purposes?

I appreciate any assistance you can provide.

Thank you,

Katie
