Hello Lynn,

So nice to meet you! I appreciate being able to work with you on the Judicial Leaders in Climate Science program. It is an exciting project, with a lot of ground to cover! I am very excited that we are paired up, especially because it creates a coast-to-coast connection!

With the difference in time zones, I thought I would look for a time to meet, for about half an hour, that might mutually overlap with our court time.

I have availability to meet:

Monday April 22, 2024, 1:00 p.m. ET (10:00 a.m. PT).

Monday April 22, 2024, 4:30 p.m. ET (1:30 p.m. PT).

Monday April 29, 2024, 11:30 a.m. ET (8:30 a.m. PT).

Thursday May 9, 2024, 11:30 a.m. ET (8:30 a.m. PT).

We could meet by Zoom or Teams. But by phone works too. If you think another day or time would work better for you, please let me know. I just wanted to provide a few options to see if any of those work.

Again, thank you for your help! I look forward to working together.

Best,

Clare

Hello Lynn, a pleasure to meet you! And thank you, Stacy, for the introduction! Very much appreciated.

I look forward to connecting with Lynn and drawing on her expertise as we go forward this year. I will email Lynn separately so we can exchange availability and work on dates to meet.

Thank you again for including me in Judicial Leaders in Climate Science. I appreciate the chance to join the conversation and assist with ideas going forward.

Take care,

Clare

Good morning Lynn and Clare.

It is my pleasure to introduce Judge Lynn Knight of Maryland to Judge Clare Keithley of California. Lynn was a very engaged member of the first cohort of the Judicial Leaders in Climate Science (JLCS) and she has graciously agreed to serve as your mentor, Clare, as you move forward as a truly thoughtful member of the second cohort. Lynn brought a pragmatic wisdom to each conversation and has been successful in developing an educational program with the Maryland Judicial College, a lunchtime webinar, and will host a full day training session this fall. She has truly put the JLCS training into practice!

As mentioned to you both, the JLCS envisions this mentor/mentee component of the program to encompass (1) at least one contact between the two of you in the coming months, (2) for Lynn to serve as a sounding board for Clare as she considers and reflects on the information being shared through the JLCS program, and (3) for Lynn to assist Clare in the action planning of how to improve and expand the educational curriculum on the management of cases involving climate science based on what Lynn has experienced in her home state. There is no one right way for the two of you to support one another in this unique leadership effort and as leaders outside of the JLCS, we also look forward to learning from you and fine tuning how we can best support and equip judicial officers from around the country to be informed, competent, and prepared to preside over this growing body of litigation.

I know you are in good hands with one another but if there is anything we can do to support you both, just say the word.

Be well,

Stacy
