Dear Judge Cahill,

Congratulations on being nominated by your jurisdiction to participate in this important and innovative program! The National Judicial College (NJC) is pleased to collaborate with the Environmental Law Institute's Climate Judiciary Project in launching Judicial Leaders in Climate Science to build capacity in state and territorial judiciaries to respond to challenges posed by climate change.

The curriculum will focus on judicial leadership skills training integrated with climate science topics and climate-related litigation and jurisprudence. The program will feature both in-person and online events over the course of the next year.

In general, by registering for this innovative program at the website identified below, you are agreeing to the following four commitments:

(A) attending two, in-person conferences (one in Reno, Nevada in March 2022 and the other in September 2022 at an east coast location TBD);

(B) completing some short advance questionnaires and course evaluations for these two sessions;

(C) making reasonable efforts to participate during the course of the year in a small number of online programs on specific climate science topics, discussing case law developments in your respective jurisdictions, as well as sharing updates on state-specific activities and leadership progress; and

(D) giving thought to enhancing the capacity of your jurisdiction's judiciary on climate science.

The program will begin with the first in-person conference, which is scheduled for March 14-17, 2022 at the National Judicial College building in Reno, Nevada. Hotel accommodations have been secured at the Whitney Peak Hotel. We shall shortly be sending you details about hotel accommodations and your travel stipend. As a result, however, of the uncertainties created by the resurgence of COVID-19 and the "omicron" variant, we urge you not to make any non-refundable travel arrangements at this juncture but to wait until we disseminate the above-referenced hotel information (which we anticipate doing shortly).

For the present, we ask you to do only three quick things in connection with the program:

1. Please register for the program at [redacted]

2. Please confirm, via e-mail, that you have been vaccinated against COVID-19. We will be asking you to provide a picture of your vaccination card when you arrive at NJC.

3. Please include in your e-mail a copy of your bio, which we will include in the course roster.

After registration is complete, we shall be sending a registration packet containing additional information about the program to all participants. In the interim, should you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact me.

Thank you. I look forward to meeting you in Reno next month.

Cordially yours,

Keith R. Fisher
